

Table of Contents

Summary	1
1. International Organizations and their Contribution to Peace: Theoretical Reflections and Empirical Findings	2
1.1. Debating the Effects of International Organizations: The early Phase	2
1.2. Disaggregating International Organizations	4
1.3. Analyzing Regional Security Institutions	5
1.4. Opening the Black-box of the Member States	7
1.5. International Institutions and the Prevention of War	9
2. Domestic Structure and Form of International Institutions - A new Approach to the Study of International Organizations	10
3. Case Selection and Operationalization of Institutional Form	11
3.1. Case Selection	11
3.2. Form Characteristic I: Embeddedness	12
3.3. Form Characteristic II: Communicative Arena	13
4. Comparing the Embeddedness of Regional Security Institutions	14
4.1. Communicative Channels	14
4.2. Interface	21
4.3. Collection, Procession and Distribution of Information	27
5. Comparing the Communicative Arena of Regional Security Institutions	28
5.1. Norms	28
5.2. Decision-making Structure	31
6. Conclusion	37
References	39
Appendix: Regional Security Organizations	49